To Whom It May Concern

Since ten years I have been working with Mr. Mohamed Hedi Jabrane as subcontractor in a variety of different projects and roles. These projects included design, implementation and test of software and configurations, and also consulting on how to map customer requirements with our solutions. The main focus was on projects in the area of simulation data and process management, which requires a broad know-how including but not limited to IT infrastructures, middleware, programming and scripting languages, as well as application software and customer processes.

Mr. Jabrane excelled in addressing multiple projects in parallel, while delivering excellent results at a very high speed in each project.

He is an excellent team worker and showed always great ambition which also helped to motivate other team members.

Mr. Jabrane is working in a highly self-sufficient and self-motivated manner. He is both a very valuable contribution to any team and also delivered excellent results on projects where he worked completely on his own.

In addition he worked continuously on staying current with latest technologies, by attending appropriate courses, self-learning and learning on the job.

I can only recommend Mr. Jabrane for any type of IT project.

Sincerely,

Dr. Stefan Mayer
